Global Currencies

The U.S. Dollar Index (DXY) strengthened over the week, appreciating by 116bps last week to close Friday at 100.07pts. It reached a near two month high supported by a lack of progress in peace efforts in the Middle East. In addition, the better-than-expected US jobs data encouraged market participants to increase their Fed rate hike bets. For context, the U.S. added 172k jobs in May, significantly higher than market expectation of 85k job additions. However, the unemployment rate remained unchanged at 4.3%.

In the Eurozone, the EUR/USD pair depreciated by 1.21% wov to US$1.15/EUR as dollar strength outweighed support for the single currency. The move was driven primarily by stronger than expected U.S. jobs data, which lifted Treasury yields and reinforced expectations of a more hawkish Federal Reserve. Meanwhile, geopolitical tensions in the Middle East and elevated oil prices added further pressure on the euro, given the Eurozone's exposure to energy import costs. Near term direction will likely depend on U.S. inflation data, Fed policy expectations, and whether tensions around the Strait of Hormuz continue to support safe-haven demand for the dollar.

Nigeria – NGN

Last week, at the NFEM window, the Naira appreciated against the US Dollar by 83bps wov to close at NGN1360.60/US$, driving its YTD appreciation to 6.17%. Nigeria's foreign reserves stood at US$50.04bn as at 4 June 2026, reflecting an increase of 0.16% wov increase from US$49.58bn.

Ghana – GHS

The Ghanaian Cedi depreciated 80bps wov against the US Dollar to close at GHS11.83/US$, bringing its YTD depreciation to -11.24%.

Fixed Income

Nigeria LCY

Last month, the OPR rate remained flat at 22.00%, while the O/N rate declined by 11bps mom to close at 22.19%. Average daily System liquidity increased by 773bps mom from an average of N5.14tn in April to N5.54tn in May. The Nigerian Overnight Financing Rate (NOFR) remained flat to close at 22.00%

Last week, CBN conducted an OMO auction on the 2 of June, to mop up excess liquidity from the system, offering a total N600.00bn spread evenly across 7-DAY, 35-DAY and 133-DAY tenors. The auction was heavily oversubscribed at N3.28tn in total subscriptions, translating to a bid-to-offer ratio of 5.46x. The CBN allotted a total of N3.04tn at an average stop rate of 20.99%.

An NTB auction was also conducted with the DMO offering a total of N1.0tn across the 91-day (N100bn), 182-day (N100bn), and 364-day (N800bn) tenors. Investor appetite remained strong, with total subscriptions reaching N2.16tn, representing a bid-to-offer ratio of 2.2x. Demand was largely concentrated in the 364-day bill, which attracted N1.95tn in subscriptions and accounted for over 90% of total demand. Consequently, the DMO allotted N1.46tn across the three maturities, while average stop rate inched upwards by 12bps to close at 16.20%.

In the secondary fixed income market, the average benchmark bond yield remained flat wow to close at 16.02%. Conversely, average benchmark OMO yield contracted by 11bps wow to close at 20.61%, while the average benchmark NTB yield contracted by 10bps to close at 17.50%.

Nigeria's capital importation surged to a record US$10.37 billion in Q1 2026, marking the first double-digit quarterly inflow in over a decade and reinforcing the country's strong capital attraction momentum. However, the composition of these inflows raises concerns about sustainability. While total capital imports expanded at a 109% CAGR, Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) grew by only 42%, significantly lagging both overall inflows and Foreign Portfolio Investment (FPI), which grew by 148%. Portfolio inflows now account for approximately 95% of total capital importation, with money market instruments—the most liquid and volatile segment—driving most inflows. As a result, the headline growth reflects an acceleration of short-term speculative capital rather than a broad-based increase in long-term productive investment, leaving the current growth trajectory heavily exposed to shifts in investor sentiment and global financial conditions.

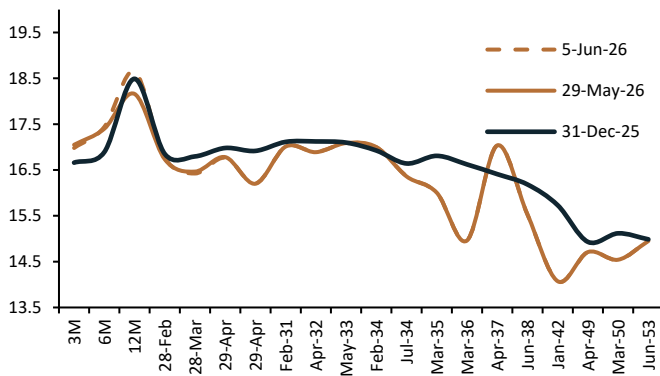

Ghana LCY

Last week, the Ghanaian yield curve expanded by 1bp wow to close at 10.53%, driven largely by buying sentiments across the curve. On a mtd basis, the yield curve has expanded by 1bp. Last week, at the latest Treasury bill auction, the government targeted GHS5.44tn, attracted only GHS6.09tn in bids. Eventually, GHS5.83tn was allotted with average interest rate expanding by 200bps to 7.64%.

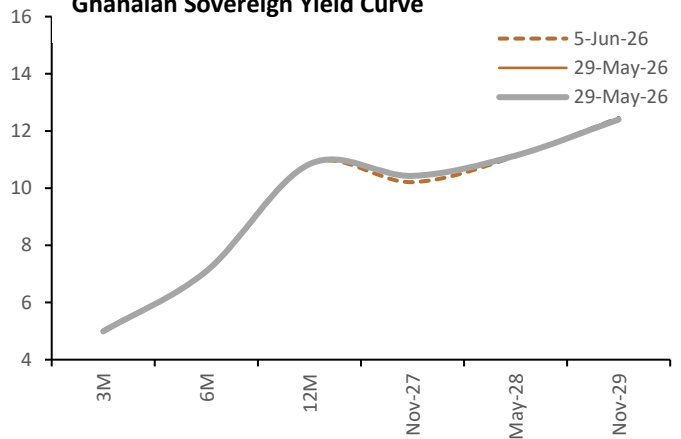

SSA Eurobonds

In the SSA Eurobond market last week, average yields remained flat wow to close at 12.07% due to selling sentiments across select markets. The strongest selling sentiment was observed in Zambia, where yields rose by 27bps, followed by Ghana (+6bps), Angola (+2bps), Nigeria (+1bp), Ivory Coast (+1bp) and Kenya remained flat. Notably, there was also buying sentiments in Congo (-11bps), Egypt (-8bps), South Africa (-5bps) and Senegal (-3bps).

Equities

Last week, the NGX ASI shed 311bps wow, dragging year-to-date (YTD) returns to 55.90%. The market performance can be attributed to losses in BUACEMEN (-42.35%), MTNN (-27.27%) and FIRSTHLD (-8.55%) which together accounted for c.78% of the losses in the market.

Regarding trading activity, average volume traded decreased by 0.76% wow to close at 793.23mn units, while average value traded also decreased by 5.46% wow to close at N35.13bn. From a sectoral point of view, all five sectors within our purview closed negative. The NGX Oil & Gas Index led the losses in sectoral performance, losing 5.18% wow, due to losses seen in ETERNA (-12.92%) and ARADEL (-9.51%). This was followed by the NGX Industrial Index losing 4.40% which can be attributed to losses in BUACEMEN (-10.00%). The NGX Banking Index lost 3.24% on the back of losses in FIRSTHOLDCO (-11.43%) and WEMABANK (-10.45%). The NGX Consumer Goods Index lost 2.15% due to losses seen in NB (-4.31%) and PZ (-3.11%). Finally, the NGX Insurance Index lost 1.89% on the back of losses seen in SOVRENINS (-9.09%) and NEM (8.81%). Within our coverage, ACCESSCORP led the pack with its share price rising by 3.95% wow followed by DANGSUGAR (+1.19% wow). On the flip side, FIRSTHOLDCO was the largest laggard last week, shedding 11.43% wow. Losses were also recorded in BUACEMEN (-10.00% wow) and ARADEL (-9.51% wow).

On the corporate front, last week the Supreme Court dismissed the final appeal and, exercising its authority under Section 22 of the Supreme Court Act, directly sanctioned the merger between Unity Bank and Providus Bank, bringing all litigation to a definitive close. By operation of this court order, Unity Bank's entire portfolio of assets and liabilities will transfer to Providus Bank within a mandatory 10-day window, while Unity's board of directors stands automatically dissolved without the need for any winding-up proceedings. Shareholders of Unity Bank will receive consideration of N3.18 per share, with the share exchange structured such that every 17 Unity Bank shares will convert into 18 Providus Bank shares, each with a nominal value of 50 kobo. Upon completion of this consolidation, the enlarged institution will operate under the new name ProvidusUnity Bank Limited, marking the birth of a strengthened, unified entity positioned to deepen its footprint across Nigeria's competitive banking landscape.

Ghana

Last week, the GSE Composite Index shed 0.38% WoW to close at 14,299.32pts from 14,354.14pts, dragging MTD performance to -0.38% and YTD return to 63.04% from 63.67% the prior week. The losses in the market was largely driven by losses in ZEN, BOPP and EGH, which weighed on the broader market during the week.

However, market capitalisation rose by 0.24% WoW to GHS265,378.21mn, with MTD and YTD returns of 0.24% and 54.25%, respectively. In USD terms, market capitalisation declined 0.66% WoW to USD22,435.68mn, translating to an MTD return of -0.66% and YTD return of 36.93%.

The Financial Sector Index performed better than the broader market, expanding by 0.74% WoW to 7,911.44pts from 7,853.48pts. The expansion translated to a MTD return of 0.74% driving YTD performance to 70.24% from 68.99% the prior week.

Trading activity softened during the week, with both market volume and value declining. Total volume declined by 37.34% WoW to 10.99mn units, while value traded decreased by 19.51% WoW to GHS90.69mn from GHS122.66mn. The slightly lower value decline suggests that trading activity was concentrated in higher-priced counters, where the total value of transactions increased disproportionately relative to the number of shares traded.

The GSE recorded five gainers in the week ended 05 June 2026. The advancers were led by ETI, which surged 12.95% WoW to GHS1.57, followed by TOTAL, up 9.9% to GHS36.00, CAL which gained 5.48% to GHS0.77, ALLGH which gained 3.17% to GHS8.46 and EGL which gained 2.13% to GHS10.03. The market saw a decline in ten stocks. ZEN was the top loser, dropping 12.47% WoW to GHS10.04, followed by BOPP (-6.43%), EGH (-6.27%), GOIL (-5.42%), SIC (-3.40%), RBGH (-2.12%), GGBL (-1.69%), SOGEGH (-0.31%), MTNGH (-0.15%) and FML (-0.15%).

Explanatory Note on Recommendation

Chapel Hill Denham Research uses a 3-grade recommendation system for stocks under its coverage: BUY, HOLD and SELL. These recommendations are based on the current share price of the stock relative to the Analyst target price derived using either intrinsic or relative valuation techniques or a combination of both as the case may be, having considered the sector, company and key valuation drivers.

Recommendation Criteria:

BUY: The Analyst considers this stock to be undervalued and with sound fundamentals where the upside potential is in excess of or equal to 20% between the current price and the Analyst target price.

HOLD: The Analyst considers this stock to be fully valued where the upside potential is between 0% and 20% or the downside potential is less than 10% between the current price and the Analyst target price.

SELL: The Analyst considers this stock to be overvalued where the downside potential is in excess of 10% between the current price and the Analyst target price.

RESTRICTED: Communication of recommendation is deemed as restricted when Chapel Hill Denham is engaged in an investment banking transaction or other related circumstances with the Company.
